In light of the recent events, with the killing of George Floyd, it is time for people of all walks of life to advance the cause of racial and social justice, and to make sure the wrongs of systematic racism are finally confronted and reversed. The Black Community deserves our support, and we will be better people for sharing our common humanity in this critical historic moment. Further, we condemn all forms of racism, discrimination, and hate.

Safe, quality housing that allows people to live within their means must be a cornerstone in the quest for justice and equity. While Community Frameworks has a long history of providing housing access and opportunities to underserved people, going forward, we affirm our commitment to pursuing our mission through a racial equity and diversity lens.

Community Frameworks will establish a committee of board and staff members to assess its programs, services, and organizational practices in relation to race, equity, diversity, and inclusion. At both the individual and organizational level, actions that strive to bring equity to housing access and business practices for African Americans and communities of color is possible. Equity and inclusion also means continuing to build on our long history of serving disadvantaged and underserved communities across the region.

The hope is that our work and actions, along with those of millions of other Americans, will begin the process of justice, healing, and transformation that this moment calls for. We can all be a part of history and change that future generations will remember.

In Community,
The Board of Directors
